Angiogenesis: Molecular Biology, Clinical Aspects

JUNE 16-27, 1993

PARADISE HOTEL, RHODES, GREECE

This conference is limited to approximately 100 scientists with strong interest in angiogenesis. It includes lectures, posters, discussion sessions and daily workshops.

Objectives:

To discuss in depth the recent advances in molecular and cellular aspects of angiogenesis, promote insights for future directions of research and potential clinical applications of promoters or inhibitors of angiogenesis.

Lecturers:

H. Antoniades (USA), S. Brem (USA), J. Denekamp (UK), F. Dieterlen (FR), P. Gullino (ITA), C. Haudenschild (USA), V.W.M. Van Hinsbergh (NETH), M. Höckel (GER), E. Keshet (ISRAEL), S. Kumar (UK), P. Lelkes (USA), M. Maragoudakis (GR), V. Mironov (GER), M. Pepper (SWITZ), P. Polverini (USA), T. Poole (USA), M. Presta (ITA), W. Risau (GER), J. Weiss (UK).

Lectures will cover:

Embryonic Development and Angiogenesis, Aspects of Molecular Biology of the Angiogenesis Cascade, Regulation of Angiogenesis, In vitro and In Vivo Models for Studying Angiogenesis, Angiogenesis in Disease States, Present Status and Future Perspectives, Clinical Applications.

Cost:

$900 per person for the duration of the meeting. This includes hotel accommodation (double occupancy), breakfast and lunch or dinner. A number of applications will be considered for financial support. Spouses are welcome. Children (under 12 staying with their parents) $450.
